ST. LOUIS FIRM'S EXHIBIT WINS GRAND PRIZE AT FAIR.

Three-Room Cottage Erected Entire ly of Southern Yellow Pine Pleases the Jurors.

The Southern Lumber Manufacturers Association, with headquarters in the Equitable building in this city, has been awarded the grand prize and two gold oliaborateurs for its yellow tine exhibit in the Forestry building at the World's Fair. The company includes the principal manufacturers of yellow pine in Missouri, Alabama, Georgia and Florida, and calls attention to the fact that all the buildings of the Louisiana Purchase Exposition are constructed entirely of Southern yellow pine, of which more than 400,000,000 feet were used.

The feature of the exhibit is a three room cottage erected solely to educate the public to the uses and advantages of yellow pine in the building of homes. Its object is to demonstrate that this kind of pine can be used as an interior finish for halls, libraries, parlors and dining-rooms in all classes of homes, giving a finish that is equal to that of any other kind of wood.

kind of wood.

The stain effect is a new feature, and special attention has been drawn to it by having the three rooms furnished in different colors, and while it is a departure in yellow pines, it has long been used in mahogany and other high-class woods. When the Germans called together their most eminent architects, under the personal direction of the Emperor, and planned and furnished those fifty odd rooms in the Palace of Varied Industries, Americans had an opportunity to study rooms in the Palace of Varied Industries.
Americans had an opportunity to study their best work. Elegance and simplicity were combined and it was not thought that the Americans could equal it. In the Manufactures building the Austrian exhibit shows rooms almost as fine. It has been found, however, that the elegance and simplicity of the three-room cottage built under the direction of the Southern Lumber Manufacturers' Association was even finer. The scheme of interior decorations is said to be superior even to that of the Germans. Plain yellow pine has been used in the three-room structure and its cheerfulness, harmony and refinement are undisputed.

The prize-winning exhibit is located in Block No. 37 of the Forestry building.
